HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1879. THE charge against John H. Snow, mate, and that against Thomas Peabody, master, of the American barque C. O. Whitmore, have been at last disposed of; but it cannot be said that the result reflects much credit upon the American authorities, or the judicial system of the United States. Apart from the harrowing details of the ill-treatment and death of James H. Elwood, the disrated second mate of the Whitmore-the recital which produced a strong feeling of indignation amongst this community in October 1876-considerable interest was felin the case on account of the unsatisfactory state in which the Angle-American law of extradition had been placed at that time by the abrogation of the Ashburton Treaty. After a lapse of nearly three years, when any tendency to lean towards the sentimental side of the case necessarily smaller, we cannot but regard every way most unsatisfactory. It would perhaps be unjust to say that these pro-Justice; but so long a period since the death of poor Elwood had been permitted to elapse ere the trials took place,

Looked at in the light of the overwhelming testimony of nearly every man on board the ship, as recorded in these columns at the time, the conclusions arrived at by the New York Jury and the Boston Judge are simply incredible It must be borne in mind, on behalf of the Judge and Jury, however, that the mass of evidence taken and published in Hongkong had in the long interval dwindled down to the statements of two witnesses only-Charles Wright Charles Delacale, seamen; and that against these men's evidence was placed at both trials, the uncorroborated testimony of the two prisoners themselves At the trial of John Snow, the mate, we are told-"The defendant relied solely upon Captain Peabody, of the Whitmore, who testified on behalf of the mate, and who, by the way, is himself now under an indictment in Boston for the same offence, said indictment consisting twenty-one different counts." While, at Captain Peabody's arraignment, story of the voyage is told on the stand by two witnesses on each side—the men Wright and Delacale for the Government, and the Master and Mate for the defence." Although it sounds strange to English notions of criminal procedure to hear that the two men charged with a crime should be the only witnesses in their defence, this fact must not be taken to imply any irregularity in carrying out the law. Its real significance comes fully to light when the number of witnesses that might have been obtainable for the prosecution is considered. At the Consular Enquiry here, held before Mr Consul D. H. Bailey, in October 1876, no less than eleven witnesses united in asserting, upon oath, that Captain Peabody and Mate Snow had systematically ill-treated and beaten Elwood until he was placed, first in the lazerette and next in an improvised bunk, to die. The names of these men -now, of course, scattered to the four winds-were : Charles Wright, Daniel Johnson, Charles Delecale, John Ander son, J. Manderson, Gustav R. Beck, to have shown a desire to give the pri-Alfred Frieddon, Johannes Erickson, John Smith (carpenter), John Howke (cook), and Edward Rief. What most impressed the Consul, and the public generally, at the time these men testified. were the forbearance they had shown during the voyage while suffering the treatment described or witnessing the gradual and horrible death of their comrade Elwood, and the remarkable tenscity with which they reiterated that the continuous ill-treatment to which Elwood was subjected was the direct cause of that poor man's death. Of the eleven with esses, the Carpenter, the Cook and Edward Rief probably commanded most attention i these had not been illtreated on board, and yet they voluntari-

Elwood's death, From the above it will be seen that the material placed before the Judge and Jury in the United States was very different from that upon which Consul Bailey arrived at his decision to discharge the crew and allow them three months' extra wages. The Consul did so, after a long and careful enquiry, and the THE steamer Withu was reported in our concluding words of his judgment were

There is one scene in the lazarette, the morning he was brought out. The Captain, Second Mate, and Ericksen went down with a lighted candle to bring him up. Ericksen says he was lying half naked, manacled hand and foot, literally covered with filth, his head bleeding, chained to a vinegar barrel with a chain not more than a foot long. Certainly one can scarcely conceive of a more pitiable object, a sadder scene. Ericksen says: The Captain sang out, "Elwood;" he answered, "Yes, Sir." The Captain then looked at him and said "You dirty son of a b-," and laughed at him. Erick. sen was then ordered by the Captain to take him by the feet and drag him to the hatch. He says: "I had to pull him by the legs towards the hatch, at the Captain's order; the Captain told me not to take him under the arms. I dragged him about 10 feet, his whole body was resting on the floor, and he was nearly naked; he did not say anything when I dragged him." He was taken on deck, the last vestige of his clothing taken off, and there, in presence of the assembled crew, this dying man, lacerated with wounds, was, by the order of the Captain, scrubbed with a corn broom and salt water, and all he said, according to the witnesses, was Oh! Oh! Oh! This finished, he was taken to the Carpenter's shop, packed in a bunk four feet two inches long, and nearly two feet wide, where he soon died. I make no comment upon a scene so painful, so abhorrent to every feeling of humanity. Having this case in view, it is to be regretted that existing circumstances are such as to render the Extradition clause of the Ashburton Treaty inoperative. In an experience of six years, with hundreds of American ships, and thousands of sailors, I have never known a case the trials at New York and Boston as in even approximating this cruelty. Instances of unwarrantable acts have occurred which have required to be redressed, but, as a rule, ceedings amounted to an entire failure of | I have found American ship-masters to be generous and humane in the treatment of their crews, but certainly I cannot say that in this case. In view of all the evidence, I think I should fail in the performance of that to arrive at a just verdict was next one of the plainest duties, if I did not discharge these seamen from the barque C. O. Whitmore.

> died from disease, and not as charged in the indictment against Snow. This is what Consul Bailey said on that point:-

The defence is that Elwood died venereal disease. If this be true, is it not passing strange that in seventy-four days of constant contact with him by his ship-mates, on ship-board, where everything is known where he was always under the eyes of his officers, who are proved to be so inimical to him, that not even a suspicion existed that he had that disease until four days before he died, when he was brought out of the lazarette, manifestly in a dying condition, covered with wounds and bruises, when suddenly it was asserted by the Captain, as new discovery, that he had the venereal disease. Wright says in his cross-examination in answer to a question by Captain Peabody, "I did not say that it was venereal disease he had; you tried to get everybody on the ship to say he had the venereal disease." But admitting that he had syphilitic disease and admitting that he received all the blows, beatings, and punishments, which are sworn to, and part of which are admitted by the Captain and his officers, were not these fearful strikings and punishments the immediate cause of his death? think so. If he died from the effect of these blows, beatings, and punishments, malice presumed, and it is murder. It was not the Bath House. done in a sudden fit of passion, but it is a series of the most brutal beatings and punishments; there was time for reflection between each act, the man was going down day day under this treatment, as the witnesses show; there was time to contemplate the consequences of their acts; there is the

It may be said that more than one Peabody to escape the punishment of which Consul Bailey and the U.S. Naval Authorities here deemed them worthy in 1876. The Captain and Mate evaded justice at that time, and were not arrested until some considerable time after wards. Most of the witnesses, as w have shown, were not produced; and the Jurors before whom Snow was tried seen by the astounding story of cruelty partially laid before them. Although Snow has now been set at liberty, and Peabody has received a nominal sentence only, it may be noted that these two men have probably received a lesson which they will not soon forget. As Judge Towell remarked, "Captain Peabody has had his trial deferred from time to time, has been in fail for about five months for want of bail, has incurred large expenses, and lost employment from the necessity of being prepared to meet the trial when it should come." If Peabody and Snow were, and are, innocent of the charges of inhumanity laid against them, then indeed are they much to be pitied. But, as Judge Towell says, "The affidavita from Hongkong were added to the dence, but neither party thought necessary to read much of them, and I have not had time to examine them with any care, and cannot pronounce a devided opinion upon that part of the evidence." In the interests of Justice and humanity, we have not heeltated to pronounce a decided opinion upon the

and I should say this was a 'bloody evidence given at Hongkong; and it is ship;" and this old man was distinctly of this, that Peabody and Snow have to opinion that Elwood's death was caused by thank the unsatisfactory state of the exill-treatment. We have not the slightest tradition law in 1876 for the freedom hesitation in saying that, had any honest they at present enjoy. One realizes on second thoughts that the extreme simplicity of the subject, and the naturalness of the artist's handling of it are the real reasons why the work has taken so immensely. The form of reproduction most popular is of course in terra cotta (Italian: baked clay), which style, after being almost completely lost sight of since the reign of Queen Anne, has within the last few years taken such a leading part in our architectural and purely ornamental works of art. The one now on view at Messrs Lane, Crawford & Co.'s is amongst the most artistic "Dirty Boy" we have seen, save, of course, the original, in the Paris Exhibition, which was "beyond compare." This copy is a remarkably pretty and well-finished work of art, and would form a handsome addition to the decorative furniture of the bestprovided house of the Colony.

THE Foochow Herald states that it has been resolved to establish a Swimming Bath in the Settlement, and that a Committee, consisting of Messrs Rennie, Duncan, and Clyma, was elected to further the project. Japanese corvette Nissin arrived on the 6th, the visit being presumedly connected with the Locchooan tribute question. The Herald gives the following regarding Tea, under date of 12th:--

Arrivals of new season's Congou are computed at 328,480 chests, and settlements since the opening of the market (5th instant) to date—at 96,185 chests. Prices have ranged from Tls. 6 a 37 per picul (short).

While this active business has taken place, there is one noteworthy and exceptionally redeeming feature in the outlook -and that is, shipments have, so far at least, been made with some regard to requirements of the consuming markets. The S. S. Agamemnon, with the first direct gargo for London, sailed on the 10th instant, to be followed to-day by the S.S. Gleneagles, the 20th by the S.S. One or two items from our American exchanges are herewith added to our yesterday's summary :---

London, May 13 .- In the House of Commons last night, Dilwyn, Liberal, moved that in the opinion of the House it was necessary that the limits of the prerogative should be more strictly observed, so as to prevent Ministers, under cover of supposed personal interposition of the Sovereign, from withdrawing from cognizance of the House matters which are properly within the scope of its powers. Dilwyn, in his speech, pointed out as examples of such matters, the annexing of Transvaal, the dispatching of Indian troops to Malta, and the sending of a fleet to the Dardanelies.

Gladstone called attention to the fact that the House had already approved Beveral ac a of the Government which the motion proposed to censure. He regarded the allegations of the motion untimely, and not supported by fact.

N rilicote announced that the Government had decided to meet the motion by direct negative. Referring to the imputations of une natitutional action on the part of the Queen, conveyed in Dilwyn's speech, ne explained that Lord Lytton's correspondence with Her Majesty was not political, it was merely a narrative of the movement of troops.

Cross, Home Secretary, announced that he was authorized to state that the letter of the Queen to Lady Frere was a mere general ex ression of sympathy.

Debate was adj urned for a week. The moti n is certain to be overwhelmingly reconfusion was caused by the motion, which, in its original form, implied that the Queen had acted unconstitutionally, being at the last moment remodelled into a simple vote of censure of the Ministers. The original motion would have met with even less support than the previous one.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and His Lordship sentenced him to two years' imprisonment, four periods of fourteen days in each year to be in solitary confinement, the rest hard labour.

Prisoner said he was innocent, if not he would be willing to have his head cut off.

REGINA v. Lui Achi.-The prisoner was charged with having made a false declaration to the Registrar General's department regarding the death of a lad named Ng Apan who died from the effects of opium poisoning. The facts of the case are well known, as a Coroner's inquest was held to enquire into the cause of death and a verdict of death from opium poisoning was returned,-the Jury adding that there was no evidence the 26th inst. shew how it came to be administered. The deceased was quite a lad. and was an apprentice to the prisoner who keeps a small carpenters' shop in Welling. ton Street. When he found what had eccurred, in order to save trouble and avoid having the body opened,—an operation to which the Chinese appear to be greatly averse, -he reported to the Registrar General's Department that death resulted from fever. The order for burial was obtained, and whilst the body was being conveyed to the burial ground, a cousin of the deceased's came upon the scene and said, in the hearing of a constable, that deceased died from taking opium. constable stopped the burial, took the body, and all the people concerned, to the West Point Station, the result being a Coroner's enquiry. Hence these proceedings.

The prisoner, a respectable looking old man, pleaded guilty, and Mr Hayllar, instructed by Mr W. H. Brereton, appeared to address the Court on his behalf, He pointed out that the prisoner only acted in accordance with the prejudices of the Chinese who were much averse having a body opened. There was, he said, no sinister motive in anything the prisoner had done. He was of course morally and legally wrong, but he was respectable man; he had had really no idea he was committing any very great offence, although it was of course necessary that the deaths should be reported correctly. He could call people to speak to the prisoner's character. There was no suspicions of a sinister motive no crime to hide, as the young man had taken away his own life.

in reply to His Lordship he said it was the first case of the sort which had ever come before the Court. His Lordship should deal leniently with the case, it was quite within the discretion of the Court to is flict a fine for perjury.

His Lordship said he was of opinion that the case had been brought forward in order Yutacan in South America or somewhere would be to authorize its purchase as to deter others. He was at a loss to see bow to punish the prisoner.

The Acting Attorney General said h knew from his own personal experience that the Chinese were very averse to having a body opened. He thought that now the case had been brought so prominently before the Chinese, it was not likely to

His Lordship said he really did not know what punishment to inflict in this case. He must take time to consider. He was afraid he would have to imprison the man. In the meantime he would be released on ball as before.

The case will come before the Court again on the 26th instant.

REGINA v. CHAN APING.—The prisoner was charged on two counts (1) larceny from the person of a pair of earrings, and (2) unlawfully wounding, being armed, with intention to do grievous bodily harm.

It may be remembered that this is the same man who committed the murderous assault on Sergeant Perry. CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL." Hongkong, June 16.

SIR, - What is it your Peking correspondent Celso Cesare Moreno wishes to say He talks about Polar Seas, Equatorial, and Antarctic currents as glibly as old Palinurus would talk of this voyage in the Argo, or Ulysses of the gushing form of his fairy-like Calypso. But I take exception to a man letting his pen wag just to show one his erudition, or in obliging us with a little word-painting, even to set off a little colouring about the "Darien Canal." There are two remarks in your correspondent's letter that I, as a sailor-man, take strong objection to. He says :- "On the Atlantic side is found the great Equatorial current of warm water known as the Gulf Stream. which comes from the Southern hemisphere, runs all along the coast of South America, enters the Caribbean Sea, crosses the Gulf of Mexico, and in tremendous volume finds its way through the Straits of Florida to the Eastern Atlantic, and freighted with tropic warmth, carries a soft and pleasant climate to the British Isles thence goes to mitigate the Arctic cold on the coasts of Sweden and Norway, like the Antarctic currents, also enters the Polar Sea and plunges beneath the ice of the Arctic Circle." Now about the "Gulf Stream" coming from the Southern hemisphere he had better "tell this to the horsemarines." as sailors won't believe him. Although it has not been made intelligible to any human being yet where the Gulf Stream comes from, or from what source it sows, still the assumption is in favour of the theory that the Gulf Stream is no other than the water of the Mediterranean passing through a huge subterrangan-cavern. or tunnel under Africa, and the Atlantic deemed politic to redeem the trade dollar. Ocean, having its "embouchure" off and get it out of the way, the better course between latitudes 18. and 20. North :-- the hypothesis we have to work upon being that, there is a continual atream of water from the Atlantic Ocean passing into the Mediterranean, running at the rate of three miles per hour (this has been proved by _hundreds of people, and is above question); and the whirlpool, or maelstrom of this subterranean cavern is supposed to be the Charybdis and Scylla of the ancients, near the two Sicilies, in Italy. Any person who has been much in the Mediterraneau, and passed the Gulf Stream a few times, will no doubt have observed the great similarity of the color of the two waters, as well as its manifold seaweeds. Then agan it is beyond dispute that the temperature is exactly the same, and is 10 degrees warmer than the Atlantic Ocean, while it also runs three miles | Ing :-an hour. Anyway the theory has exploded that went so far as to suggest that the Gulf St. eam came from the southern hemisphere; never has its influence been felt below the Bay of Honduras. Your correspondent has also adverted to another subject which I would like to say a word upon. This is what he says-"while the tide of the Red Sea from Suez to Aden, which runs from two to three miles per hour, and being without regular monscons, is very dangerous for sailing navigation, rendering it almost impossible." Now I undertake to say that Monsieur Moreno has not read much of Horsburgh's Directory or Captain Roger's (I. N.) "Winds and Currents of the Red Sea," or he would not write such nonsense. As a person who has travelled these seas a few summers I find I have much to learn. I never knew there was a tide, or current regarded the dishonored and justly imprisetting "from Suez to Aden" running from | soned silver dollar of 412h grains as the two to three miles per hour-or any other | most disgraceful form of political money, man, I should think, with the exception of It was corrupt and as corrupting in princi-Monsieur Moreno; a current may be per- | ple as if it only contained 12g grains. This "monstrous proposi to be met with unless the sea has been | tion" was in the interest of bullionists and bear, and a sort of "ignia fattus" to many peoples, of many lands-long before poor graphic work on the "Isthmus of Darien" almost cimmerian gloom-but Frenchmen

THE SILVER BILL.

In the U.S. House of Representatives great discussions have taken place on the the bi-metal standards have been fully discussed. At one sitting, reported in the second week of May, Mr Kelly, on being asked whether he advocated a single (silver) standard, replied that he was a thorough bi-metallist. He was ready to remonetize silver at its present rate, and make this country, as some had remarked, the great dumping ground for silver. He called attention to the condition of France, serene, amid the perturbed nations of the earth. She never had experienced a financial crisis since she had the bi-metallic standard. | fornia have disposed of all the fine silver While the coming of the Czar was heralded on hand and to come forward up to the by the tramp of armed Cossacks, while | sailing of the next China steamer for the England found herself in a position where same market. Japan, of which the President some ten dated republic which everybody hoped and believed would be an example to all the nations of Europe. [Applause.]

At another sitting, Secretary Sherman, on being interrogated as to the existence of the Trade Dollar, spoke in favour of abolishing that coin.

In the course of future colloquy, the Secretary made the following remarks concerning the proposition to redeem tradedollars with standard-dollars :- "If they are monetized, it will be a discrimination of full fifteen per cent. against our miners of silver who have bullion to sell, and in favor of the Chinese and our merchants. who, by buying up this form of bullion in China for eighty-five cents, can sell it to the Government for a dollar. The proposition, if adopted, would suddenly change our standard of values from gold to silver, and would seriously impair our public credit and our ability to reduce the interest of the public debt. If, however, it is bullion at a slight advance over other forms of bul ion, to be paid for with lawful money or the sale of bonds. This would soon retire those in this country, without tempting their importation from China. The public would soon understand that they were not lawful money, and this would stop their circulation.'

The bill now pending action in the House, and which will doubtless be passed next Tuesday, is directly opposed to Secretary Sherman's views concerning the redemption of the trade dollar, but embodies his recommendation to drop it from the list of authorized coins.

.The warmth of the debates are not unfrequently remarkable. Witness the follow-

Chittenden opposed the bill as an assault on the integrity and welfare of the people. He ridiculed Le la Maryr as the high priest of the Greenbackers, who tried to make it warm for the "hell-born bondholders." He then proceeded to "turn the light" on Warner, and said that if that gentleman's speech was right then temperance, industry, frugal living, business tact and accumulation of property were heresies and devices of thieves and robbers. Every industrious and temperate man in this country made money, but it required common sense and tact to save something and be a capitalist. [Laughter.] The doctrine of Warner was the d-dest nonsense. [-houts of laughter. The present coinage law, unless modified, would certainly force on this country an exclusive silver standard. He

THE GROWING EVIL AT BODIE. California's principal mining camps are being rapidly filled up with Nevada people of all classes; and while we would fain blace the social standing of Nevadans on a par with that of Californians, there is one social evil, deep seated in Nevada, most horrible, most degrading, most extravagent and most enclaving. It is opium smoking -the pernicious habit introduced by the awinish heathens—and while Young America deplores so desply the presence in our midst of these very Mongolians, they will pitcounty beg, lie for, or borrow a small sum of money from friends, and even kneel with hands clasped before the tigliest visaged Chinaman in the land, whimpering for the slightest inhalation of the soulenslaving opiate. This influx from Nevada has brought and planted the seeds of this BAROMETER- 9 A.H.... deadly vice on every hand. They bring their accourrements with them, but still are obliged to patronize the Chinaman when the dem-imonde, young boys cast out upon living, clerks, and worse than all, people a moonlight night, and the prisoner, hear- having noticed Sergeant Perry try to stop | country, for the purpose often of escaping | better part of the night in a state of stupefaction. The only e cuse ever offered is to the effect that while many classes inject and otherwise indulge in morphine-too often prescribed by their physicians—the smoking of opium is comparatively harmless and mild, and at the same time the occasional, moderate, or even hard smoker, will tell you that they are not enslaved, are temperate and can quit when they choose. Alas I what a fatal error when found out too late. In Bodie it costs the average smoker from one to two dollars per day, while others smoke from four to ten times per day, and it costs them three to five dollars, or all they can earn, or beg, and they are actually in a state of stupid intoxication two-thirds of the time. Many amusing incidents transpire. A young friend of ours fell in love and courted ardently a young lady for some time. She would frequently crave his pardon for can be given. The License Tax Ordinance eating onlons, and although the young man was not over sensitive, yet in time, he learned the slight difference between the odor of onions and opium smoke. It is needless to state that she kept her own pipe. Nearly all these people were educated or contracted the habit in Nevada, and now that they have passed stringent laws for the suppression of the evil, let California take this view of the Chinese plague and if necessary make the penalty as severe as in Japan, where ten years imprisonment is considered light. UNITED STATES. New York, April 20.

There is a large demand for silver for China just at present, owing to the opening of the tea season. The London market being comparatively bare, European buyers for China and East Indian account have had to resort to the San Francisco market. The Nevada Bank sold $400,000 by the last steamer, and both it and the Bank of Cali-same comes upon the market. The inoperativeness of the new Treaty concluded between the United States and days since made official declaration. has made it a subject of regret with merchants doing business in that quarter that this country could not conclude an independent Treaty. Though the restrictions, so called, which it is alleged other Powers have imposed on the commerce of Japan are complained of, the United States would not object to special privileges. Indeed, the securing these is considered to have been the object of the negotiation of this treaty. only checkmated by the foresight of the British Minister to Japan.

A petition has been presented to Congress from Oregon to pass a law interdicting the Chinese from entering that State. The low wages the Chinese are willing to accept, their sending their earnings to China, the fact of their presence restricting the inflow of Americans, and the apprehensions entertained from large accessions of Celestials in the future, are put forward as pleas to support the prayer. It is exceedingly pleasing to the American mind that the question of Chinese immigration should have come up in the Canadian Parliament. and been judged of sufficient importance to be referred to a committee to report on. The report, and more especially the action taken on it, will be looked for with interest by millions in the United States.

The exodus of the negroes from Mississippi and Louislana continues. It will be a strange phenomenon should the Chinese hereafter be the raisers of cotton in the South, for it is to China that the planters. in course of being depleted of their labourers, turn with longing eyes.

Under the system of exchange so widely practised by the scientific societies of the world, the Smithsonian Institute at Washington has just received a collection of 134 species of Japanese fish, being very nearly a complete collection of all the known species of that empire. The specimens are admirably got up, and are labelled in Japanese. Latin, and English.—China Express.
